

Senior Exercise Physiologist Peak Centre Vancouver

The Peak Centre for Human Performance in Vancouver is looking for a highly motivated, experienced exercise physiologist to take on a partnership role to lead the sport science team.

The Vancouver based Peak Centre is a high-performance testing and training facility that has been in operation and growing steadily since November 2005. The Vancouver Centre is part of the Peak Centre for Human Performance organization which is backed with 20 years of sport science research in Canada. Our facility is located in the North-West corner of Burnaby and consists of a lab equipped with medical grade lactate and metabolic testing equipment as well as a training area. The current clientele consists mostly of endurance athletes such as runners, cyclists and triathletes from recreational to elite. Speed/power athletes are a growing area of our clientele and we are currently in the process of launching dryland programs for kids and adults.

If you would like more information on what the Peak Centre offers, please see our website at www.peakcentrevancouver.ca.

Typical Duties:

- perform a range of physiological assessment protocols
- development of customized, periodized, sport-specific client training programs
- development and presentation of seminars on various topics directed at clientele and prospective clientele
- training, mentoring of new Peak staff
- identify ways to make the administration of Peak training programs and assessments more efficient and cost effective
- provide input on strategic directions of sport programs

Position Requirements:

- Bachelors degree in Kinesiology (or equivalent education). M.Sc. an asset.
- Certified Exercise Physiologist designation through the CSEP
- 5 years experience designing training programs and working with endurance athletes such as triathletes, runners and cyclists
- a strong entrepreneurial spirit and work ethic

The following skills would also be an asset:

- CSCS designation and experience working with speed/power athletes
- a background in competitive sport
- some experience with customer service and sales

Applications will be accepted until September 1, 2008.

Interested parties can apply or obtain further information from Mike McIvor by email at mike@peakcentrevancouver.ca or by phone at (604) 299-7959.